PIERCE KINGSLEY'S Great American Play

DESERTED AT THE ALTER

A play for Mother's, Wives', Sisters and Sweethearts, The Best American Play ever written,

Tuesday February.....

WILL VISIT PALESTINE.

Rev J. W. Schwartz, D. D. of Worthington, Pa., who has been announced to preach to the St. Paul's Lutheran congregation Sunday morning, will spend the day at the home of Rev. M. M. Allbeck. Rev. Schwartz, who is on his way to Palestine, will accompany the Clarks Arabic Cruise, which will leave New York, Feb. 8, sailing from there to Gibraltar, stopping at Liverpool, Constantinople, Athens and Alexandra. He will spend about two weeks in Palestine and Northern Egypt. Rev. Schwartz is taking this trip through the kindness of Hon. E D. Graff of Worthington, he having presented him with the ticket as a Christmas present.

His charge have liberally granted him a vacation and given him a purse of $100 for incidentals. Upon his return, April 19, he will likely give a series of lectures, using the trip as his subject. Rev Schwartz has been the pastor of the Worthington congregation for the past 38 years and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. His many friends and acquaintances join in wishing him a pleasant trip and a safe return.

Rev. Schwartz is the father of Mrs. M. M. Allbeck.

"Buster Brown" Pleased Full House.

"Buster Brown" as presented at the opera house last night, was certainly one of the best shows ever produced in this vicinity and Manager Shuster is to be congratulated in securing it for his patrons. Master Giovanni as "Buster Brown" and Jack Bell, his dog, particularly pleased the audience, while Jack Demsey is certainly an artist in his line, being the best dancer ever seen in this town Manager Shuster is endeavoring to secure a return engagement for the benefit of those who were unfortunate enough to miss it, not many such attractions being on the road.

Notice.

All members of the E. E. A. C. ball team are requested to be present at a meeting to be held in the Capitol Pool room tomorrow (Sunday) morning at 11 o'clock sharp.

Encouraging Start.

Mrs. Conklin began her course of lectures this afternoon in the M. E. church to women only. The subject, "Wifehood and Motherhood" was handled in a very able manner. A large and appreciative audience was present and the outlook is very encouraging and promising. Tomorrow at 3 oclock she will lecture to the men only, her subject being "The New Chivalry" at the opera house. A silver offering is taken at each lecture, no admission charged. It is to be hoped these offerings will be liberal as the Ministerial Association hold themselves responsible in case enough is not realized to pay expenses.

A Coming Book.

An event of local significance is the promise of a novel, dealing with the Whiskey Insurrection, by R. T. Wiley, one of the best informed authorities on the past of Westeren Pennsylvania. Mr. Wiley is a resident of Elizabeth, and his book should be accurate in historic and topographic respects, which need not detract from its merit as a romance. The John C. Winston Co. of Philadelphia will publish it in the spring.

A Dog's Yawn.

Did you ever see a dog gape? For thoroughness and entire absence of affectation and mock shamefacedness there is nothing like it. When he gapes he doesn't screw his face into all sorts of unnatural shapes in an endeavor to keep his mouth shut with his jaws wide open. Neither does he put his paw up to his face in an apologetic way while gaping in ambush, as it were. No. When he gapes he is perfectly willing that the whole world shall come to the show. He braces himself firmly on his four feet, stretches out his neck, depresses his head, and his jaws open with graceful moderation. At first it is but an exaggerated grin, but when the gape is apparently accomplished the dog turns out his elbows, opens his jaws another forty-five degrees, swallows an imaginary bone by a sudden and convulsive movement, curls up his tongue like the petal of a tiger lily and shuts his jaws together with a snap. Then he assumes a grave and contented visage, as is eminently becoming to one who has performed a duty successfully and conscientiously.—Pearson's Weekly.

Antimacassars Were Ads.

"This is an antimacassar," said an antiquary. "It is a hundred years old and very valuable on account of the quaint design of its embroidery. Some day I shall sell it to a millionaire. Yes, some day the antimacassar will adorn a millionaire's parlor, figuring there as an antique piece of art, and that will be as thoroughly a relic of today should figure as an article of art in some aesthetic lady's drawing room in 3000."

He laid the antimacassar, a kind of tidy, in a sandalwood box. Then he went on:

"The word's derivation shows the thing's use. Macassar, hair oil. The antimacassar was spread on chair backs to protect them from the oil in people's hair. Everybody used Rowland's macassar oil on his hair. So far as Rowland was excellent as it was unique."

Geographies to Blame.

Ask any hundred English men, women or children what is the name of the capital of Russia, and every one of them will reply "St. Petersburg." It may be a small matter, but in point of fact the proper name is "Petersburg." The English are the only folk who insist upon the "Saint." The city was founded by Peter the Great and is named after him. It is quite true that Peter was one of the most extraordinary men that ever filled a throne, but no one would have been more astounded than himself at being dubbed a saint. He neither lived nor died in the odor of sanctity, and it is hard to find out how it became the English fashion to miscall the splendid town he founded.—London Mail.

Witches in Eggshells.

When Napoleon III was approaching sovereignty he asked a judicious friend to observe him carefully for a week and to point out to him anything that he did which was not according to the severest code of the manner of a well bred man. At the end of the week there was only one practice which his friend had noticed. The emperor after eating a boiled egg invariably thrust his spoon through it. Whence this practice has arisen, at one time not uncommon, it is difficult to say. Some date it from a very early period and assume that it was done originally in order to prevent witches sailing in the eggshells.

The Word "Jag."

In many English country dialects the word "jag" is found. It originally meant a small load of hay, from which it came to mean a load of drunk so big as to overcome one. "Jag" possesses an infinite number of meanings. The original meaning, "a load," has been extended to the journey with the load, the saddlebags which held it and the act of carrying it, while in certain districts it signifies a blister, the head of a flower, old leather and fatigue, in addition to encroaching with "jog" and figuring in many English to denote rough or "jagged" edges.

IN LOVE WITH THE SCHOOLMA'AM

[Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

"Well, Lee, go and get on your Sunday suit and grease your hair and boots."

"What for?"

"She's come, and she's just peaches."

"The new schoolma'am?"

It had become known throughout School district No. 5 that a new schoolma'am would take hold on Sept. 1, and it had leaked out that she was young and pretty. She would board around, as all schoolteachers do in the country, but would put in the first two weeks at the home of Farmer Ross, for Abe Botsford was hired man.

Abe was twenty-five years old, as steady as grandfather's clock and as timid as a girl. He had been almost a mind to run away for the first two weeks and only the fact that the farmer was not feeling well and that there was driving had kept him from doing so. The day had been set for the teacher to arrive and a neighbor had driven Abe over to the railroad town and fetch her back in his buggy. Abe was cutting hoed corn along a roadside field when the neighbor stopped and addressed him as above. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon and supper would not be ready until 6. Those were long and uncomfortable hours for Abe. Young men knew that he was homely, ungainly in himself, uncultivated, and the idea of entertaining a real young lady and having to sit at table and converse with her was to his heart to pounding.

"You comb your hair, put on your collar and a coat, and I'll introduce you," said Mrs. Ross. "She's a girl that shines over any one in this county for looks, but she won't be snippy. You'll just be glad that she came. I'm fat and homely and don't know how to entertain company. Now, get your hair combed, your bag's untied, but she'll do it and the boys around my neck and shoulders will cause. She came, and I feel like kissing her for a year."

Abe would rather have had a couple of front teeth pulled. He went to the barn in a few minutes. Mrs. Ross and Abe Botsford and began the evening's work, and in ten minutes Abe remembered among those ing of his heart had been left behind. per was through the chores in the barnyard to min was visiting R. It was an exciting two weeks. In that particular community the old farmers almost forgot to predict a hard winter. Then on the day before she was to return to Farmer Ross' the schoolma'am received a scrawl at the hands of one of her pupils. It read:

"E Pluribus Unum" on Our Coins.

According to the United States mint officials, the words, "E Pluribus Unum," as they appear on our coins, are there without the sanction of law. The legend first appeared upon a copper coin "struck" at the Newburg (N. Y.) plant in the year 1786. The United States was very young at that time and could not afford the luxury of a mint, so a private individual of the name of Brasher opened the Newburg coining establishment with the intention of turning out money of the realm for all comers. Exactly how the words "E Pluribus Unum" came to be used as a motto is not known, but one thing is certain—the Brasher copper coin bearing that legend and the date of 1786 is the most valuable metal disk ever minted on this continent.

Some time after coining his famous copper with the odd Latin motto as above described Brasher tried his hand at a large sized gold piece, producing the coin known to the numismatics as "Brasher's twenty." The Brasher "twenty" was not a twenty dollar gold piece, however, for it lacked $4 of weighing enough, but of late years it has become very scarce and valuable because of the fact that the legend inscribed upon it reads "Unum E Pluribus" instead of "E Pluribus Unum."

Forget Your Lost Battles.

Napoleon the Great on one of his campaigns while walking about the camp one night, as he was accustomed to do to discover how the soldiers were occupied, chanced to come upon a group listening to an excited speaker. Napoleon drew near to listen and found that the man was regaling his comrades with an account of battles that Napoleon had lost.

"I had the fellow hanged as a traitor," Napoleon said. "Men do not win battles by the memory of battles lost!"

It was perfectly true. A distinguished military officer affirmed that after troops had been beaten in a battle it took weeks to get them to fire as well as they had done before. Bad success demoralizes them. If one is continually looking back at the things one has missed in life one loses the power to see what is yet within reach of one's hands.—London Spectator.

All the Vowels In One Word.

There are but six words in the English language which contain all the vowels in regular order—viz. abstemious, facetious, facetious, ministerious and tragedious. There is but one word which contains them in regular reverse order, and that word is dunderal. Besides the above there are 149 English words which contain all the vowels in irregular order. Twelve of these begin with the letter a, seven with b, twenty-three with c, sixteen with d, fourteen with e, four with f, seven with g, one with h, six with i, two with j, two with m, two with n, two with o, thirteen with p, one with q, five with r, nine with s, two with t, fifteen with u and six with v.

Golf Maniacs.

I have in my time lived on intimate terms with the officers of most nations in Europe. My experience of British officers (among whom I now have the honor to count many friends) is that they are second to none in intellect and instruction, but this, bien entendu, only until golf links and a golf ball become visible. Then they are maniacs. I try to talk to them of scenery, literature, politics, etc.—they are polite, of course, the English always are—but I can see instinctively that there is only one subject to interest them, le sacre white ball.—A Foreign Visitor in Civil and Military Gazette, Lahore.

Peppermint.

The preparation of peppermint is especially an American industry. The peppermint is cut when in bloom, like hay, dried, placed in close wooden vats and steamed. The oil cells burst and the oil passes upward with the steam, which is condensed and conducted into a receiver, where the oil rises and is piped off. It takes about 350 pound of dry peppermint to produce one pound of oil. An acre of land yields from six to ten pounds of oil, often more, even as high as fifty pounds.

Looked Suspicious.

Mrs. Jymes—I had the queerest good luck yesterday in looking for a flat. I found an apartment house where the rooms are elegant, the rent reasonable and the agent doesn't object to children. Mrs. Blykely Mercy! I hope you didn't agree to take it. There must be something wrong with the neighborhood.—Chicago Tribune.

A Queer Bird.

Natural history always interests children, who usually recall explanations of the phenomena in their own way. An account of the habits of the cuckoo, for instance, was apparently absorbed at the time, but was reproduced thus a few days later: "The cuckoo? Oh, that's the bird that doesn't lay its own eggs."

Bright Answers.

"Noah's wife," wrote a boy in an examination, "was called Joan of Arc." "Water," wrote another, "is composed of two gases, oxygen and camforgen." "Lava," said a third, "is what the barber puts on your face." "A blizzard," declared another child, "is the inside of a fowl."

The Distinction.

"Do you say that as a lawyer or a man?" exclaimed an exasperated witness whom a lawyer was cross examining. "If you say it as a man, it is a lie and a slander, but if you say it as a lawyer it's not of the slightest consequence."—London Telegraph.

Fear is implanted in us as a preservative from evil, but its duty, like that of other passions, is not to overbear reason, but to assist it.—Johnson.

Couldn't Lift Ten Pounds.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Vigor to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

Sick kidneys cause a weak, lame or aching back, and a weak back makes a weak man. Can't be well and strong until the kidneys are cured. Treat them with Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the testimony of one man cured.

J. B. CORTON.

J. B. Corton, farmer and lumberman, of Deppe, N. C., says "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor even ride in easy buggy. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors and they have also found good results. If you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble, you are at liberty to do so."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Corton will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.
